

State Energy Sector Partnership Quick Reference Guide

Who We Serve: As the recipient of a $3.36M grant, made available through the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act, tuition assistance and training opportunities are available to Connecticut jobseekers and businesses. Individuals seeking employment in careers in renewable energy, energy efficiency, and other industries with a green focus, may qualify for tuition assistance. No-cost training is available to municipal building officials to prepare them for implementation of Connecticut's new building codes and increase familiarity with green building technology. Businesses interested in sustainability practices, incorporating green technology into current practices, or providing additional knowledge and skills to incumbent workers, may also benefit from the State Energy Sector Partnership grant's offerings.

Partners and Offerings: Among our training partners and offerings are:

- CONNSTEP (Green Collar Champion Training)
- Institute for Sustainable Energy at ECSU (Municipal Building Official Training)
- Council for Adult and Experiential Learning (CAEL) (sustainability training and development of a toolkit for use by Connecticut's manufacturers to advance lean and green goals)
