On occasion, the biomanufacturing classes will discuss stem cells, cloning, prescription hormone therapy, health care reform, public policy and other similar issues relevant to biomanufacturing that may be sensitive for some individuals. Included in the discussion will be the science behind the particular topic, and the relative pros and cons. Students will be encouraged to understand there are ethical, legal and social implications of these topics, and that differing personal viewpoints exist. Students are expected to respect the opinions of others, even when those opinions differ from their own, and participate in discussions with civility.

_____ I give permission for my student to participate in these discussions.
_____ I prefer my student NOT participate in these discussions and ask that my student be allowed to work in another room during the discussions.

I have read, understand and agree to follow the class expectations in Ms. Jensen's class.
