

CT STEM JOBS

HELP SUPPORT THE DEVELOPMENT OF YOUR FUTURE WORKFORCE!

Connecticut's high-tech employers are increasingly concerned about the pipeline of skilled workers who will be ready to meet the demands of the 21st century workplace. CT STEM Jobs, an initiative of the Connecticut Workforce Development Council, is funded by the US Department of Labor. The program prepares the unemployed and incumbent workers for new careers in advanced manufacturing, engineering, information technology, alternative and renewable energy, and other STEM-related fields.

As an employer, CT STEM Jobs gives you an opportunity to:

- Provide career mentoring to people aspiring for new and better jobs in STEM fields
 - Define the STEM skills you are looking for in employees
- Develop customized training opportunities to fit specialized job requirements

We need your help today!

Please encourage and motivate your employees and staff to volunteer as STEM Career Mentors.

Apply now to be a CT STEM Jobs Career Mentor. We will provide training and connect each volunteer to resources that will support a positive mentoring relationship. As a mentor, we ask that you commit two hours per month and communicate at least twice during the month with your mentee. Mentoring can take place through email and face-to-face meetings, and on a schedule you determine.
